

“Society’s most complex problems are made and solved at the unit level – one person at a time.”

When starting this book on July 1, 2005 I already believed that neither Party had the vision or the political guts to effectively confront the Special Interest driven status Quo and resolve our Common Problems. It is now early February 2008 and the events of the last two-and-a-half years, unfortunately, have proven them even less capable or willing to confront those challenges.

It is just another reason why somebody had to write such a book as CS2 about really confronting and resolving some of those serious on-going problems – to call our People to action – and to propose our Second American Revolution.

In 1776, it took Common Sense and our national ancestor’s blood and determination to create America and our radical new Democratic form of government. They confronted the all too powerful Few within their own country, in the name of the Common Good of the Many and took control of their Destiny.

In 2008 and beyond, it will take the Second Coming of Common Sense and the united actions of our fellow Americans to re-establish the People’s control over the government and preserve our Democracy. We must confront the Few that are exercising far too much power over the Common Good and regain control over our national Destiny. That not being dramatic, because it is the Plain Truth.

We the People must decide our nation’s future. To confront our historic challenges of 2008 and decide whether or not to control our own destiny...

In particular I am challenging my fellow Baby Boomers for it is now our watch. We must show true leadership for the sake of our children’s generation and for those that follow them.

And, like it or not, We will now unavoidably make that Common Decision — either by our deliberate action or our inaction.

As for me, I am all in, and I say We stand together and fight!
